Date Received: 15/04/2026

Thank you for your request for information received on 15th April 2026 which was dealt with under the terms of the Freedom of Information Act 2000. Northern Ireland Ambulance Service (NIAS) Health and Social Care Trust has now completed its search for the information you requested and that is detailed below.

FOI QUESTION(S)	ANSWER(S)
I would like to know how many critical care personnel are currently employed by NIAS? Please break this down by organisation (AANI or NIAS), district, station which they are based, and clinical level. E.g. NIAS, Eastern District, Broadway Ambulance Station, Critical Care Paramedic.	11 Advanced Paramedics in Critical Care (APCC), including trainees (T-APCC) base Maze Long Kesh (MLK), Lisburn (zero APCC's employed by AANI)
I would also like a copy of the current critical care fleet. Please break this down by station, vehicle type, VRM, callsign, and vehicle role. E.g. Broadway, Skoda Octavia, JGZ 1416, Delta 2, Doctor Response Vehicle.	3x Skoda Octavia APCC vehicle / HEMS vehicle / Medical Director Base Maze Long Kesh and NIAS Headquarters VRMs and call signs are withheld under Section 24(1) National Security, please see below for further detail.
I would like to know what the availability of critical care resources is? Is there a critical care resource available 24/7? How many of the critical care resources are available at once?	APCC – Currently ad-hoc throughout week, up until midnight on certain days. HEMS – 0700-1900 7 days a week. No This varies depending on availability of resources, time of day.

The Public Interest Test

In determining whether or not the public interest in withholding information outweighs the public interest disclosing information, NIAS considered the factors favouring disclosure and the factors against disclosure. The application of the Public Interest Test is set out below.

Exemption claimed in respect of Section 24 (1) National Security
Considerations in Favour of Disclosing	Considerations in Favour of Not Disclosing
To disclose this information would adhere to the basic principle of being open and transparent.	Releasing such information would give those individuals with the intent to do so, the intelligence required to possibly disrupt the activity of NI Ambulance Service. This knowledge would allow those with ill intent to target the service more effectively which may lead to an increased likelihood of criminal activity and therefore the potential danger to the public. Any disclosure of information which is likely to undermine the ability to maintain public safety therefore crime can only be considered as being harmful to the public and not in the public interest.

Harm in providing the Information Held

To provide the individual call signs and registrations for specific vehicles could undermine national security. It could allow those with ill intent to cause disruption to the emergency service that NIAS provides to patients and service users. Knowing call signs and associated information for specific vehicles may allow individuals to communicate on the emergency network which could lead to major disruption and therefore interfere with the smooth running of the vital service that NIAS provide.

Balancing Test

A disclosure under the Freedom of Information Act is a disclosure to the world at large, therefore information that is disclosed must be suitable to be disclosed to anyone. When considering whether disclosure is appropriate, we must consider the strongest reason for disclosure against the strongest reasons for non-disclosure.

In this case, whilst the factors favouring disclosure are important in that it would adhere to the basic principle of being open and transparent, when weighed against the risk of disclosure undermining our ability to protect the public and respond effectively to emergencies, then non-disclosure takes precedence.

The Information Commissioners Office confirm that they recognise that terrorists can be highly motivated and may go to great lengths to gather intelligence. This means there may be grounds for withholding seemingly harmless information on the basis that it may assist terrorists when pieced together with other information they may obtain.

I hope the above fully assists you.
